COSTLY TRAIN WRECK ON THE EDMONTON LINE

C. P. R. Passenger Crashes Into Freight, But No Lives Are Lost

A south-bound C.P.R. freight train collided with a Calgary night express on the Calgary-Edmonton line at 12.15 Sunday morning at a point 15 miles south of the city of Edmonton. It was fortunate that the express was running at a slow rate at the time or a much different story might have been told for a large number of passengers bound for Calgary were on board. None of these were injured. The damage to the track and rolling stock amounts to well up in the thousands of dollars.

The collision took place a few miles north of Niski, which is about 15 miles south of Edmonton. Seven freight cars were piled up on the track and smashed to pieces, and the locomotives were badly damaged. The crews jumped before the engines met, and thus saved their lives.

The blame for the accident has not been definitely placed by the railway company. It is stated, however, that Freight Engineer, Wilfred Bradley's watch was seven minutes slow. The freight should have taken the switch at Leduc, but endeavored to go to the next siding at Niski before the passenger, but as the engineer's watch was out, the time allowed was shorter than the engineer thought. A comparison of time recorded by the trainmen's watches made just after the collision showed that Bradley's was slow. Bradley is known to be one of the most trusted employees of the company, and is much hurt over the accident.

At 2 o'clock Sunday, the track was cleared and trains were running again on schedule time. The passengers on the wrecked passenger train and the following passenger train were transferred to Calgary and Winnipeg night trains, and brought to Calgary.

Local Horsemen's Success At Horse Shows

Messrs. Hewson & Sons, Alex Sims and J. Dunlop, local horsemen of this district, achieved notable success at the Edmonton and Calgary Provincial Horse Shows during the past two weeks against all comers from this province, showing once again that no matter what is going on in the horse and cattle line this district has to be reckoned with. At the Edmonton Show, Alex Sims of Edwell, took first prize Championship and Grand Championship with his three-year-old Clydesdale mare, Hewson & Sons taking two first prizes and Reserved Championship with their standard bred colts, Tilden Boy and Tipton D.

At Calgary Show, with a greater number of competitors, they were again to the front, beating out nearly everything in their class. Alex Sims took first prize and Reserved championship with his three-year-old Clydesdale mare. Hewson & Sons took first prize and Championship of Province for standard bred, any age, with their three-year-old Tilden Boy, the silver medal going with this; first prize with Tipton D. in the two-year-old standard bred class; and first prize in the progeny class with Tilden Boy, Tipton D. and Lone, all of the registered standard bred sire, Zonover.

J. Dunlop took third and fourth prizes in the aged class of Clydesdale mares, afterwards selling the pair to the Regina Agricultural Stock Farm for $1,100.

Red Deer Archdeaconery

From Monday to Friday next week the Anglican clergy meet in Red Deer for worship and conference. The Ven. Archdeacon Devdney has made arrangements for them to make their headquarters at the Parish Hall.

The Bishop of Calgary will give an address at Evensong on Monday, or on Tuesday morning, 10 a.m., he will give an address on "the history of the church in Rupert's land."

On Wednesday Dean Paget, of Calgary, will give addresses on "Aspects in Our Lord's Life." It is hoped that not a few of St. Luke's congregation will take the opportunity of attending these services.

ALBERTA BENEFITS BY REDUCTION IN RATES

Traffic Expert Analyses Judgment in Western Freight Rates Case

Toronto, April 16.—The following statement is the judgment of the board of railway commissioners in the western rates case was made by Alex. McDonald, who was rate expert for the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta in the celebrated case. There has been a reduction of 7 1/2 per cent. in standard mile rates between all points in Saskatchewan and Alberta, and a reduction to the Manitoba basis on brick, stone, gravel, sand, cement, building block, cordwood, fence posts, rails and poles.

The reductions from eastern Canada and Port William on fifth class freight, which includes canned goods, sugar, syrup, soap, etc., and nails, iron, building paper and heavy hardware, will be as follows: (Per car of 30,000 pounds): Calgary, $21; Edmonton, $21; Medicine Hat, $18; Hardisty, $15; Lethbridge, $18; Regina, $9; Moose Jaw, $8; Swift Current, $6; Maple Creek, $6.

The reductions in the rates from eastern Canada and Port William on agricultural implements are (per car of 20,000 pounds): Broadview, $4; Regina, $6; Medicine Hat, $8; Gleichen, $10; Calgary, $10; Edmonton, $10; Lethbridge, $12.

There have been reductions ordered in the rates on coal from Lethbridge and Cardiff, Alberta, also from Estevan in Saskatchewan. The reductions on these commodities will be more than 7 1/2 per cent. For instance, on post, rails, and poles; the reductions on 25 to 50 miles are from one to one and one-half cents per 100 pounds.

The reductions on cordwood are: For 25 miles, one-half cent; 50 miles, one cent; 100 miles, one and one-half cents; 200 to 300 miles, two cents per 100 pounds.

There have been substantial reductions in the local grain rates which will help the consuming centres of Saskatchewan and Alberta. The reductions per car of 60,000 pounds are as follows: 50 miles, $18; 100 miles, $18; 150 miles, $24; 200 miles, $27; 405 miles, $30; 500 miles, $34.

Fireman's Ball A Great Success

The eighth annual ball of the Red Deer Fire Brigade was held in the Parish Hall on Friday, April 17th, and can be written up as a complete success from every point of view.

The dancers began to arrive about 8.30, and by 9.30 the hall was comfortably filled and dancing was in full swing. The floor of the hall was in perfect condition, and the decoration committee had also done their part of the preparations in a very pleasing manner. The music was provided by the Webb orchestra, and was up to their usual high standard, consequently they received repeated encores.

The moonlight waltz was the hit of the evening, particularly with the younger people. The supper was served in the basement at the interval, and was credit to those in charge, and certainly enjoyed by those who partook of it.

The cold rain of the afternoon no doubt kept a number of visitors from the country away, but those present made the most of a very enjoyable evening. Mayor Carswell, Commissioner Stephenson, and Aldermen Lord and Carswell were present as representatives of the City Council.

Sylvan Lake Farmer Dies Suddenly

Andrew Wiona, a farmer living near Sylvan Lake, was found dead in bed Monday morning by one of his children. According to information, it appears that the deceased went to bed as usual Sunday night after attending to a sick horse, and as far as is known he was in his usual health. The children, who are early risers, got up at five o'clock, and after preparing coffee, took a cup upstairs to their father, this being a usual custom, and it was then found that he was dead. Mrs. Wiona was sleeping in another room with their three months old baby. The Coroner, Dr. George, was notified, and went to the farm and examined the deceased and found him to have died from an attack of syncope, due in his opinion to heart trouble.

The deceased was a sober, industrious man who had a good home and a good farm, and leaves behind him a widow and ten children, whose ages range from nineteen years down to three months.

Beautiful The City

Clean Up Day Meeting

A meeting of all governing bodies of the city, together with every citizen interested in the welfare of Red Deer, is called for Friday evening next, April 24th, in the City Hall at eight o'clock p.m. to discuss the question of inaugurating a clean up day, and, if possible, or if it is thought advisable, to organize a Civic Improvement League. Among the associations asked to be present and make suggestions are the Ladies' Hospital Aid, Alexandra Club, Women's Institute, Board of Trade, Horticultural Society, Exhibition Association, Hospital Board, School Boards, Retail Merchants' Association, Young Men's Associations, the city and any and every citizen who has the welfare and beautifying of Red Deer at heart.

The idea is to have a day set apart to clean up the city, to plant trees, to improve our parks, to beautify in every conceivable manner our already beautiful and attractive city.

It is sincerely hoped that there will be a large attendance of citizens, ladies and gentlemen, as every citizen in the province is now agitating along the same lines, and we will discuss, and there should be the keenest interest displayed by all in the scheme.

Remember the date, Friday evening next, and be present yourself.

necessary to meet the glaring defects with which the statute books are now crowded.

Public Debt

But this erratic condition of affairs is not surprising when we consider the phenomenal increase in the public debt, together with the interest charges, now approximately $1,000,000 a year. Beginning on January 1, 1908, with a total balance of $47,077, expenditure exceeded income during the fiscal year at the rate of about $1,000,000 a year, but since Mr. Sifton came to save the province from its railway and financial difficulties, the public debt has increased at the enormous rate of about $4,000,000 a year, making the present direct liability under the borrowing powers of the province approximately $10,000,000, with an indirect liability of about $83,000,000. I have used the word approximately with care, and as being within the limits of our possible obligations to date, inasmuch as all the facts cannot be gleaned, either from the public accounts or the answers to questions recorded in the votes and proceedings of the legislature.

What Would You Have?

In conclusion, there is the question, what would you have? The continuance of liberal rule, with its pronounced incompetencies and mismanagement of our affairs or a wise, economic and beneficent government? Would you have a Liberal-Conservative government, under the leadership of Mr. Michener, a man of undoubted ability and unimpeachable character, or the restraint of development in this province with a direct and increased taxation? Would you have a cautious, vigorous and progressive administration for the future expansion of the various classes and their interests in this great country, or as now, the application of a policy of administration that is a definite ideal? I am based upon the doctrine of expediency? It is for you, the electors after all, the initial and supreme choice, to choose at the next election. Choice is destiny, and it is your duty in the meantime to study the welfare of the province that you may choose the best.

MR. MICHERNER SPEAKS

Mr. Michener on rising to speak, said: I am sure we have listened with a great deal of interest to the eloquent discussion of political questions by Mr. Hillocks, member for North Calgary. When I am called away from home to give political speeches I try to measure up to the question in the briefest sense to a discussion of provincial and national questions. Mr. Hillocks tonight has given us a very comprehensive and faithful discussion of political questions. I am going to content myself to just a few very few remarks of more or less local character.

Before I begin I wish to express my pleasure that there are so many present on this occasion. I would like to have seen the only other Liberals present tonight, as I feel that when the election is over and I am elected by majority as representative of the constituency of Red Deer that I am the representative of all the people for the Red Deer riding for the next term, irrespective of party. For that reason I would like to have some of our Liberal friends here. But we are glad that there are some here tonight, and I think you will find, if you have or your beliefs in public matters, whether it be Liberalism or Socialism, you will find me ready at all times to listen to you. But I am glad that there are the only other representatives and Liberals, but Socialists, as well as ladies, and if there are suffragettes present we are also glad to have them with us. I have no quarrel, Mr. Chairman, with them, as long as they are not of the militant kind.

While coming in this evening I would speak of to show you that our time is now, even though Calgary and Edmonton have surpassed us in the past, yet as far as Red Deer is concerned, her future is assured. The worst stage of the financial depression is over, and I look forward with confidence to the more rapid and permanent growth of the most central city of the whole province. Since addressing you before we have had a general provincial election. I wish to say just one or two words regarding it. At that time some of our party were optimistic that we would be able to defeat the government. When Mr. Chairman, we step to the front we had to go up against the last provincial election it is a marvel to me, and it is amazing to me that there is a single one of our party left on the floor of the house to tell the tale. The upstart was with the redistribution bill in favor of the party in power, which was launched upon us 24 days before the election, without giving our party any chance to properly organize, or to get candidates in the field, and it was known that for months these boundary lines would be in other words. This is the respect they caught us napping. The redistribution of the province was unfair, unequal and disgraced. During the last election every department of the government at Edmonton was working over time to get the party in power. Officials of the different departments were sent out all over the province to hold meetings and work in the interests of the party. Take the Public Works Department for example. In our own constituency of Red Deer, we find that the whole modifications may be made in them, and that the different classes of material may be indicated by hatchings, unless you propose to color all the material. The building is approved by the Post Office Department, subject to a covered porch being provided at mail stations.

It is important that this work receive your immediate attention. Inform us how soon tenders may be invited, also your estimate of cost. Yours truly, (Sgd) D. EWART, "Chief Architect."

In addition to that I have a letter which was just received today from the Minister of Public Works, Hon. Rogers, in which he says:

"Dear Mr. Michener—I have yours of the 4th instant re. the contract for the Red Deer post office, and from enquiries which I have made, I understand that the plan for the building has been approved by Mr. Rogers. As soon as they are received there will be no further delay. Yours sincerely, (Sgd) R. ROGERS, Minister of Public Works."

I may tell you that the plans are being forwarded tomorrow completed, and ready for the specifications to be printed by the King's Printer, and the work of the building will be commenced, and tenders will be called, and the building proceeded with at the earliest possible date.

Another matter of local interest, Mr. Chairman, is that of railways. We have had considerable delay with respect to the railways in connection with our city. Now with respect to the Canadian Pacific Railway, a line from Calgary to South Edmonton, through Red Deer, the company have recently had financial difficulties, as you all know, but Mr. Macleod, the general manager, as well as Sir William Mackenzie, whom I met in Ottawa in January, both assured me that they were anxious to get connected up with Red Deer, and just as soon as it was possible they would connect their line. I have a letter from Mr. Macleod in which he states that he has not as yet received instructions for the season's work, but he expects any day to receive those instructions, and he believes that the work of the line will be completed at the end of the season. The connection to Red Deer. With regard to the eastern section of the A.C.R., he has received a letter from Mr. Macleod stating that owing to the famine in steel rails it was possible that the line would not be built this season, as material could be procured.

Mr. Chairman, the disappointment in connection with railway development is only a matter of delay, and we need not be alarmed at the future of our splendid city, situated as it is on the Red Deer river, equally distant from two of the largest cities of the province, and with fine transportation systems both to the east and west, there is not a doubt in my mind as to the future development of Red Deer. When we consider that with a population of less than half a million in the province, today we have reached the development in Red Deer that we have, and we are now in the more rapid railway development in the future, and with the filling up of the country which can handsomely support many more people than we have, there should be no doubt as to the prospects of our city. And so you can see that I believe that in the end it is better for us that we go slowly and surely and permanently in our growth, than if we had made too active strides.

To show you that the C.P.R. is a friend of the city of Red Deer, today one of the officials of the C.P.R. interviewed our firm and stated that they proposed to bring on tomorrow's train a general passenger car in addition to one or two more, which we really won, but were elected out of in Clearwater constituency. The returning officer for Clearwater was very much surprised that there were 39 votes cast for the Conservative candidate and 40 for the Liberal, but there were six tied up ballots. For this reason, and the fact that the votes were all for our candidate, Mr. Williamson-Taylor, but the returning officer for Clearwater refused to count those ballots which were tied up, and declared the Liberal candidate elected, after which the returning officer for Clearwater was very much surprised that there were 39 votes cast for the Conservative candidate and 40 for the Liberal, but there were six tied up ballots. MR. HILLOCK'S ADDRESS.

In another column we publish the speech delivered by Mr. Hillock on Tuesday evening last. The Advocate says the citizens are "rarely called upon to listen to such an untrue and unfair representation of political history and facts." It further said the address was "a narrow, immoral attempt to make party capital, etc." The address should be read by everyone, and we would respectfully ask the Advocate to tell its readers wherein the address is unfair, immoral and untrue. This is pretty strong language for our generally mild-mannered editor to use, and we will have to leave it to our readers to judge for themselves as to the truthfulness of the statements. Our opinion is that the address was one of the most brilliant, forceful and truthful addresses ever given in Red Deer, and it must have touched a very tender spot to bring out such strong denunciations.

Read the address. It is worth while.

MR. MICHENER ALRIGHT.

A desperate attempt by some parties has been made lately to discredit the well known firm of Michener, Carscallen & Co. So obvious is the intention of these people to do the firm harm that they have not been able to refrain from boasting of what they are doing. They have made false statements in an insinuating manner that citizens found it hard to answer. They have been working overtime circulating stories of the most absurd nature, and were always careful to cover up their tracks and to claim they were not responsible for the statements.

The whole matter, we understand, is now in the courts, and we will refrain from making further comment, except to state we are confident the company will have no difficulty in proving their innocence of any wrong doing. The members of the firm are among our oldest and best known citizens. Every good work has had their support. No mean, contemptible or cowardly action has ever been placed at their door. They have done more to build up the city and its institutions than most men in it. Then it is hardly fair to allow political heeds in our city to go about making untruthful statements about them. That such statements will rebound on those who make them, we feel confident, because they savor of malice, and are apparently only hatched up for political purposes to injure Mr. Michener.

UNFAIR TO MUNICIPALITIES.

(Edmonton Bulletin)

The mayors of thirty-eight cities and towns in the province have been in convention in the city for the purpose of protesting against the recent amendments to the license law which prevent the municipal authorities collecting license fees from hotels and liquor stores. They base their demand for the restoration of this privilege upon the fact that the liquor business materially increases the cost of maintaining the police of a city or town, and argue quite reasonably that the contributing cause should bear a part, or all, of the expense it now imposes upon the ratepayers. The argument is unanswerable. But this is not the only consideration, nor the most vital one, upon which the claim can be supported. As the civic authorities are deprived of the power to license the sale of liquor, they are prevented regulating the conduct of selling places. This power is now vested completely in the liquor branch of the Provincial Government. Practically all the police force of a city can do to mitigate the results of the business is to pick up the "drunks" who stagger along the streets, and it is a moot question whether they can legally do this unless the "drunk" is also "disorderly." The municipal authorities have no power to inspect the premises where liquor is sold; to investigate whether selling is done during prohibited hours, or to men in an intoxicated condition, or whether in other respects these establishments are conducted in accordance with the restrictions imposed for the defence of society. This authority now rests altogether in the hands of the officials of the liquor license department of the government, and to them the public have to look for the enforcement of the law regarding the disposal of liquor. Inasmuch as it is the local police force that the people of the community have to look for protection from those who have over-indulged, and as the responsibility rests upon the municipality of taking care of those whose over-indulgence leaves them helpless on the streets, the municipality should have corresponding power to protect its people and its interests by inspection of liquor-selling places, and the enforcement of the regulations.

PLOT WAS CRIMINAL.

SAYS THE TIMES.

Under the caption "Pot and Plotters, Why the Cabinet's Plan Failed," the military correspondent of the London Times reviews the scheme to intimidate Ulster. He says:

"Sir John Simon, the Attorney-General, lifted a corner of the veil by his confession at Blackburn on Friday last. He admitted that he has been selected by the Prime Minister to be a member of a small committee of the Cabinet which discussed at the War Office the plan of operations—or, as he euphemistically termed it, the 'arrangements'—against Ulster, and by this admission he demonstrated conclusively that the Cabinet were privy to the assembly, and therefore liable for the consequences of this council of war."

The names of the other Ministers at this secret convocation will doubtless be demanded in the House of Commons. They are rumored, rightly or wrongly, to have been Mr. Churchill, Colonel Seely and Mr. Birrell. The plan of campaign, which Sir John Simon elegantly defined as "a perfectly reasonable and necessary precaution," was one which had the unfortunate appearance of having been deliberately designed to provoke opposition in Ulster. That it was expected to encounter resistance has been admitted by Colonel Seely, and is indeed proved by the extensive preparations which were made to support it. This resistance, the council of war prepared to crush by the combined exertions of the army and the navy, the first including all the available troops in Ireland, and the second comprising warships of various types with field artillery for landing parties."

The Times discussing, editorially, the proposed coup d'état against Ulster and its miscarriage on account of the refusal of the army officers to play a part assigned to them, says in part:

"The country has learned with amazement that even the supposed general wishes of the Cabinet can now be over-ruled from within. A few infuriated and overworked Ministers have very nearly plunged the Kingdom into a more deadly strife than the conflicts of the Cromwellian wars, and they only failed through the hanging of their instruments. This is the misdeed for which not one party alone, but all that great leaven of moderate and sensible men who help to mould British opinion in great emergencies,

WHEAT CULTIVATION

IN ARGENTINE REPUBLIC

Production Less Per Acre Than in Canada—Farming Conditions in South America

"The Grain Growers' Guide," in a recent issue, had a very interesting description of the Argentine Republic and the agricultural conditions that prevail there. In population Argentina is nearly equal to Canada, having 7,711,190 people on December 31st, 1911, whereas Canada, on June 1st of the same year, had 7,666,042. Argentina is, however, outstripping Canada in immigration at present. That country received 547,000 in 1912 as compared with 395,000 who came to Canada. Our total commerce is over $200,000,000 greater than that of Argentina, although Argentina exported nearly $4,000,000 more products than Argentina.

While we frequently hear about the hardships of the farmer in Western Canada, and are told of the exactions of the big interests through the system of protection, high freight rates, excessive interest charges, etc., it is doubtful if there is any Western grain grower who would be willing to change his homestead for a farm in free trade Argentina, where, according to the "Grain Growers' Guide," there are special difficulties to overcome in the race for agricultural supremacy. Chief of these is the low general intelligence of the people. In 1911, more than one-half of the population over six years of age were illiterate. Argentina, that is natives, constitute three-fifths of the population, chiefly of Spanish extraction, the national language also being Spanish. Of the one and a quarter million foreigners living in Argentina, about one-half are Italians, one-third Spaniards, with French, Russian and Servians next in order, and only 40,000 Anglo-Saxons. Only a third of the farmers own the land they cultivate and most of the grain growers are dependent upon family labor. Nearly all the farmers begin their career by renting land on shares, sharing the crop with the owner of the land. With little experience and less money, their lot is a hard one. The farmer and his family do all the work, while the land owner sells the crop. During the seeding and harvesting seasons the whole family work in the fields from daylight to dark. This condition is little better than serfdom and naturally the farmer's whole effort is to better his condition. With thousands of wheat growers the be-all and end-all of life is to get enough money to return to Italy (the native country of most of them) and buy a little farm or business of their own. The average holding of the small farmer is 247 acres and even those who own or rent larger farms are not much better off because they do not know how to till it properly.

The impression, instant and deep from these disclosures of monumental folly is that the Ministry have lost all clear and efficient grasp of national affairs. The belief in their decline is not only widespread, but extends to all shades of political thought. There has been much talk of mutiny. Last week we saw only one mutiny, and that was the mutiny of the Ministry's own supporters, whose wild wrath at their dodging ineptitude they have ever since been vainly trying to appease. Every Minister after long years of office grows careless, reckless, lax and sometimes incompetent. Ministers become harassed and overworked, and their judgment gets warped by the strain of incessant nervous tension. They cannot, however, escape arraignment at that account, and they must pay the penalty. In such matters the public judgment carries little about psychology, and is bound to be stern and incorrupt. There can be only one fate for Ministers who for the time being have outlived their usefulness.

ABOUT FREE WHEAT SHALL WE HAVE IT?

Would Prices be Affected—Figures Favor Winnipeg if Anything During the Past Three Years

The advent into the political arena of the cry for free food has afforded the Grain Growers an opportunity to renege their demand for free wheat and to enlist in their behalf the force of a movement which tends in the same direction, though based on entirely different principles and seeking an entirely different result. The free foodists are working for the easier entry of food into the country, while the Grain Growers are aiming at its freer exit; thus one has the consumer in mind, while the other is solely in the interests of the producer. The agitation for the removal of wheat duties is, therefore, one that blows hot and cold from the same mouth.

Those who favor free wheat maintain that the chief advantage will come from the Western Grain Grower obtaining a higher price in Minneapolis. The range of prices during the past two years has weakened this argument somewhat, and it is doubtful how great an advantage the Grain Grower would get from increased prices. The fact of the matter is that with the exception of about two months in the fall of 1913, the Minneapolis price has been lower than the Winnipeg price during the past two years by from one to as much as ten cents per bushel. Even allowing for the alleged differences in grading, where by Canadian and American wheat equal nominally in grade, differs in quality owing to the higher grading of the Canadian article, there would seem to be little if any advantage in selling in the southern market. The spread to-day on May wheat is more than two cents in favor of the Winnipeg market. Just how the Canadian farmer will gain by selling in the Minneapolis market under such conditions is hard to see.

A RECORD BAG

Great Sport For Halleybury and Co. balt Hunters

Probably one of the largest bags of game, secured in the North country was made by a party of Cobalt and Halleybury hunters. The gentlemen in question, eight in number, were out in the bush five miles from Gillies for a week, and in that short space of time, secured one moose, one bear and eight deer, a remarkable record for a trip of that duration.

That the chase was most successful the "bag" captured attests, and the hunters report that deer were most plentiful in that neighborhood, and could easily be shot. Those deer which they themselves obtained were shot in a thick, and there was very little necessity to go hunting them. The moose also which was a good specimen of the monarch of the bush was obtained without much trouble, being shot from a distance of two hundred yards, and three shots despatched the animal.

The presence of the bear in the "bag" was due largely to Bruin's fondness for fresh venison. Attracted by the smell of deer flesh the bear approached the hunters' camp and proceeded to make short work of the head and entrails of one of the slain deer. He had spoiled the former for mounting purposes before his presence in the immediate vicinity was noticed, but, once he had been observed, no time was lost in adding his carcass to the list of trophies secured.

The bodies of the various animals captured were towed across the river behind a canoe, and were afterwards loaded in sleighs and in that way brought back home. The hunters reported that before the snow fell, the deer, especially, were captured with out any great difficulty, but, after the storm, more trouble was experienced in shooting them. The party returned home well pleased with the result of the trip.

To Save Fenceposts A new bulletin is now available at the Forestry Branch, Ottawa, describing some simple and inexpensive methods of preserving fenceposts from decay. It has been found that the generous application of road creosote to well-seasoned posts stripped of bark, even when only painted on with a brush, will add at least ten years to the life of the least durable woods. Many common Canadian woods which hitherto decayed too rapidly to be so used are thus made available for fenceposts. The saving in first cost and transportation more than balances the cost of treatment, while the cost of placing the post will be much less when considered as an annual charge.

MADE GOOD MONEY IN MIXED FARMING

How a Settler Near Prince Albert Has Increased His Capital Twelve Times in Six Years

"The Canadian Countryman" reprints a letter from the "Scottish Farmer," which was written by an old countryman who settled in the Prince Albert district in the fall of 1908 with about $400 in his possession.

"I was fortunate enough," said the farmer in question, "to secure a good quarter section, and after three years' residence my small capital has increased to about $5,000 in land, buildings, stock, and implements. This is just one among a multitude of other successes."

The country around is virtually a poor man's paradise, as the poor man is able to become comparatively rich, or the rich man richer. If I had possessed $2,500 when I came, instead of $400, I could have been worth $12,500 now.

"What makes this district so desirable for settlers is that it is adapted to mixed farming, which is really the only kind of farming that can be depended upon as a permanent source of revenue. The country's best advertisement is manifested in those who sell their holdings at a low price and leave here for some imaginary Elysian fields afar off that they find are only a mirage when they get there. The advertising part is seen when such people return here and have to begin again, bawling all the time their less than shining record and lamenting their wasted years of toil."

"There are some people who very easily become discouraged and fail. The country cannot, of course, please that sort of person, and success does not await anyone who comes to seek a life of ease and luxury. What Prince Albert and the surrounding district needs is capitalists to establish 'home industries' and develop the vast resources of the country, and men with willing hands and arms to populate the outlying regions awaiting thousands of homemakers."

The writer of this letter, Mr. W. W. Carter, appreciates the fact that the farmers' best market is the home market. Only by the building up of industrial enterprises in convenient centres in the West will the Western country secure that well-rounded development which is essential to a broad measure of success, and which will enable the farmer to avoid the problems of unemployment which most Western communities have faced this winter. Two or three factories in a town can absorb in the winter time most of the floating population, which is busy on the farms and in the surrounding district in the summer time. Thus do farm and factory work together to mutual advantage.

HOW TO FEED FACTORIES

Mixed Farming Development Near Edmonton Insures Plentiful Food Supplies

In reviewing the annual address of President Cooper of the Edmonton Board of Trade, the "Monetary Times" calls attention to the fact that Edmonton has a splendid tributary territory so that its factories, warehouses and railroads, are sure of having good business.

Dealing with suggestions that more active efforts should be made to encourage new industries to come to the city, Mr. Cooper said first he would like to see the ninety-five factories and industrial enterprises already there, operating to full capacity and increasing that capacity; a practical suggestion. To double the output of existing factories is preferable to doubling the number of industries. He felt that work such as that done by the Central Alberta Development League, designed to promote agricultural developments, in the tributary territory, should be vigorously continued, and the attention of outside agriculturists drawn in every possible way to the fact that between the Red Deer and the Athabasca rivers lies probably the best mixed farming country in this continent, and that there is to-day, and as far in the future as one can see, a ready market at high prices for almost unlimited amounts of all classes of farm products other than grain. At present it is estimated that less than five per cent. of the good, tillable land in the rich territory referred to is in use. To increase the production of the surrounding land is the surest way to increase the output of Edmonton factories. That is a principle which Toronto and other Ontario will one day have to recognize in regard to Northern Ontario.

A sound agricultural development which will provide adequate food supplies for a comparatively situated urban population is the best foundation for the industrial development which Edmonton and other cities will experience in the next few years under existing local conditions.

He Took the Opportunity

An old Scottish grave-digger was remunerated with one day for making a serious overcharge for digging a grave. "Weel, ye see, sir," said the old man, in explanation, making a motion with his thumb towards the grave, "my an' me had a bit of a tiff two or three years ago over a watch I sold him, and I've never been able to get the money out o' him yet. 'Noo, I says ta ma'sel, 'this is ma last chance, an' I'll better tak' it.'"

THE SOLE SURVIVOR IN TWINE INDUSTRY

What Has Happened in an Important Industry—Is the Product Cheaper to the Farmer

In a recent issue the "Financial Post" says: "There is no business of a manufacturing character that has had more ups and downs than that of manufacturing binder twine. One of the factories, perhaps the only one in Canada, to make both ends meet is the Brantford Cordage Company. It is only after very strenuous efforts that this industry has been kept together and those who pay money into it have not as yet seen returns on their investment that could be called satisfactory. At the present time the company is doing fairly well. This by no means is an indication that the older twine manufacturing business is one that offers much hope for the employment of new capital. The Brantford Cordage Company has the distinction of being the survivor out of many who started and have since disappeared."

There is one other big firm in Canada, located in Welland, Ont. It is a United States concern and no statement of their affairs is available. It is known, however, that cordage forms an important part of their output, and it has been stated on the best of authority that the factor that determined the location of a plant in Welland some ten years ago was the impression that prevailed at that time that the Canadian Government would not long keep binder twine on the free list. Knowing the inside of the binder twine industry as the directors of this big firm do, they realized how difficult it would be for a Canadian mill to operate successfully under free trade conditions, and believing that it was inevitable that twine would be made dutiable they came to Canada so as to be in a good position to compete for the Canadian trade when the duty was put back. While their expectations of the renewal of the duty have not been realized, their judgment as to the decline in the industry in Canada under free trade conditions has been only too fully confirmed. Apart from their own plant, and that referred to in the extract above, there are no factories in Canada manufacturing binder twine to-day. The Brantford Cordage Company manufactures cordage also as does the firm in Welland, and the effect of free trade on the binder twine industry is manifest when it is realized that there is not a single factory in the United States turning binder twine exclusively that has been able to stay in the ring. The industry is a history of failures during the past few years, and when all is said and done how much has the Canadian farmer gained by the sacrifice of the investors and workmen in Canadian binder twine factories. If anything the prices have increased materially during the past ten years when Canada's binder twine industry was being forced to the wall.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

A Significant Inquiry Touching the Iron and Steel Industry

In the "Daily Iron Trade" of Cleveland, Ohio, appeared an editorial relating the receipt of a letter from a subscriber in Texas who sought information which would enable him to get in touch with British and European exporters of the following iron and steel products: Wire nails, barbed wire, pipe, corrugated sheets, bars, plates, structural steel, bolts, nuts, rivets, rails and spikes, fire brick, pig iron and coal and coke.

The editor calls attention to the fact that this inquiry has resulted through the tariff on steel products being reduced to nearly the zero mark, and that these foreign products would be sold in Texas to the exclusion of American manufactures.

Thus curtailing the business of American industries.

Reducing American workmen's wages.

Closing down American establishments.

Throwing men out of employment in this country.

Enriching the foreigner.

Building up foreign competition and doing no one in America any particular good.

Coming as it does at a time when the steel industry of the United States is running about one-third of its capacity and thousands of its employees are walking the streets looking for work, this item provides food for thought for those in Canada who would still further hamper the iron and steel industry of this country by throwing their products open to competition from the whole world. If for no other reason than that it would keep the iron and steel workers employed on full time the Government should view favorably a policy of reasonable encouragement for the iron and steel industry in this country.

Lord Macaulay's Precocity

In the story of Lord Macaulay's very precocious childhood we are told of a little plot of ground in the garden marked as his own by a border of oyster shells. The maid was to throw these away as rubbish; he ran straight to the drawing room, where his mother was entertaining guests, and said with the solemn intensity of childhood: "Cursed be Sally, for it is written, cursed be he that removeth his neighbor's landmark."

THE W. E. LORD CO'Y, LTD.

Provincial Football Association Meeting

The annual meeting of the Alberta Football Association took place at Calgary on Easter Monday. Chief Meeres, the President of the Association, presided over the largest attendance of delegates on record. The principal business of the meeting was the question of affiliation with the Dominion Football Association. Previous to this meeting the Football Association as a body have been members of the Alberta Amateur Athletic Union, but the rules of that body do not fit in with the rules of the Dominion Association, so that in the event of the Alberta Association joining the Dominion Association they would have to drop out of the A.A.U. This was keenly felt by everyone concerned, and the question was threshed out from every angle of view. The matter was finally brought to a conclusion on a motion made by H. J. Snell, of Red Deer, and seconded by A. Melville, of Lethbridge. The Alberta Amateur Football Association affiliate with the Dominion Football Association. The motion carried without a dissenting voice. The delegates, however, made it very clear that they wished to adhere strictly to their amateur standing. Previous to the motion being put Harry Ballantyne as representative of the A.A.U., addressed the meeting, and gave a splendid presentation of the proceedings that took place at the meeting of the federal body in Montreal in November last. In part he said that there were three essentials upon which the Amateur Athletic Union were to be based. He decided. They were: (1) the right to govern football, both professional and amateur; (2) the right to reinstate professionals; (3) the right to play against Old Country professionals. Mr. Ballantyne continued that it was absolutely impossible for the amateur union to accept this so that the split occurred. They could not accept, even had they wished to, as their constitution was against it. If it were only a question of playing against Old Country professional teams, that could be easily arranged.

INTERMEDIATE CHAMPIONSHIP THIS YEAR.
On the motion of J. K. Matheson, Calgary, seconded by T. S. S. Davies, Edmonton, it was unanimously agreed to run an intermediate provincial championship this year. The very important question of affiliation to the Dominion Football Association took up a long time in discussion. President Gow, of the Calgary league, gave a statement in connection with the matter, and also produced letters from the officers of the Dominion Football Association regarding the question. Harry Ballantyne gave a resume of the doings at the Amateur Athletic Union meeting, and said that he was of opinion that some terms could yet be arranged whereby the football association would remain affiliated to the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. Every one of the league delegates was in favor of affiliation, with power to remain amateur, and this was the idea that permeated the meeting when they voted in favor of affiliation.

The following officers were elected: Hon. President, H. Ward, Edmonton; Hon. vice-president, H. Meeres, Red Deer; president, James Gow, Calgary; vice-presidents, A. Small, Edmonton; W. H. Hadley, Red Deer; W. Stevens, Lethbridge; George Taylor, Calgary; and all the chairman of the other districts. The next annual meeting will take place in Red Deer.

Blackfalls

The C.N.R. are now running a regular weekly passenger train to the Mountain House, leaving Blackfalls about 2 p.m. every Wednesday. Edelville freight will be taken on that day also.

The sudden change in the weather is bad for the lambs and is causing some anxiety to sheep owners here. There is a rumor that the C. N. R. connection with Calgary will be "linked up" very shortly.

Valley Centre

There has passed from our midst, in the death of Mr. H. Puzey, one of our most respected and highly esteemed residents.

Mr. Puzey and family came from England some years ago to this district, where, with his sons, he has carried on mixed farming very successfully. His quiet, unassuming manner, kindness, uprightness of character, and his practical interest in every movement for the social, moral and spiritual development of the district, caused him to be respected and held in high esteem by all who knew him.

The deepest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Puzey and family in their bereavement. The following resolution was passed unanimously by Valley Centre congregation: Whereas it has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst one of our most respected citizens, kindly neighbors and faithful workers, it is hereby resolved that we, the officers, members and adherents of Valley Centre congregation, desire to convey to Mrs. Puzey, family and relatives our sincere sympathy in their bereavement. And further to place on record our appreciation of the devoted service rendered by Mr. Puzey to this congregation in the past as manager and superintendent. To the consolation and care of the Heavenly Father we commend the widow and family.

Chick Chat

(By A. W. Foley, Poultry Sup't., Edmonton, Alta.)

Hatch your chickens in April or early May if you want winter layers. Keep them growing continuously, as while you are growing your chicks you are growing your eggs. Young chicks are babies—treat them as such.

Do not feed the chicks for at least thirty-six hours after they are hatched, as feeding too often overtaxes their digestive system and causes diarrhoea.

Dust the setting hens and keep them free from lice at all times. Protect the chicks against chilling when transferring them to the brooder or coop. Have your brooder clean, disinfected and heated before transferring the chicks from the incubator to the brooder. Use chaff or litter in the brooder. Never use damp or musty litter.

Teach the chicks that under the cover is their source of heat supply. A little patience in this matter will save many from sickness or death through chilling. If chicks huddle together the brooder is too cold; if they scatter to the corners it is too hot.

Remember that unsanitary or damp conditions breed lice and disease. Disinfect the brooder or coop occasionally, and clean out the brooder or coop often and renew the chaff.

Give chick grit for first feed. It is advisable to feed commercial chick feed for the first two weeks. Where commercial chick feed is not used feed stale bread crumbs, rolled oats, or granulated oat meal.

Hard boiled eggs may be fed occasionally, but should be mixed with other foods or fed sparingly. After the chicks are two weeks old, they can be gradually weaned to cracked wheat, and finally ground oats with the hulls removed.

Keep clean, grit, shell, ground oats, green feed and fresh, clean water before your chicks at all times. Chicks should have a supply of animal food or skim milk. Never allow milk to remain in vessels till it sours.

Self-feeding hoppers located in a dry place, containing bran, ground oats and grit, insure a constant supply of food to the chicks. Cracked grains should be fed in the litter. If chicks are sickly, look for head lice. Head lice burrow into the head of the chick and can be killed by the application of equal parts of lard and sulphur.

Get your chicks on grass range as soon as possible. Green feed is necessary for rapid growth. A wet mash of skim milk and ground oats may be fed to advantage occasionally by way of variety. Always feed clean, wholesome food.

EARLY CLOSING BY-LAW

NOTICE is hereby given that a petition has been presented to the Council of the City of Red Deer under the provisions of The Early Closing Act, praying for the passing of the following closing by-law:

A By-law to provide for the early closing of Retail Shops within the City of Red Deer.

WITNESSETH pursuant to The Early Closing Act, a petition has been presented by the occupiers of certain barber shops in the City of Red Deer, requesting the municipal council of the City of Red Deer to fix the hours of the several days of the week and afterwards all barber shops in the City shall be closed for serving of customers and in said petition allege that they constitute at least two-thirds in number of the occupiers of barber shops in the City of Red Deer.

AND WHEREAS, pursuant to the prayer of said petition, the municipal Council deems it necessary and expedient to pass this By-law;

NOW THEREFORE THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF RED DEER, DULY ASSEMBLED, ENACTS AS FOLLOWS:

1. From and after the coming into force of this By-law, all barber shops within the City of Red Deer, and each of them, shall be and remain closed on each and every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights between the hours of twelve o'clock in the evening and eight o'clock in the morning of the next following day, on Wednesday nights between the hours of nine o'clock in the evening and eight o'clock in the morning of the next following day, on Saturday nights between the hours of twelve o'clock in the evening and eight o'clock in the morning of the following Monday morning, except as follows:

proclamation of the City of Red Deer, when such shops shall be closed not later than the hour of eleven o'clock in the evening, and on holidays coming on Mondays or Saturdays the said shops shall close at the hour of twelve o'clock in the forenoon.

2. This By-law shall come into force and be effective when it has been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

3. Any person violating any of the provisions of this By-law shall be liable on summary conviction: (a) for a first offence, to a fine not exceeding Five ($5) dollars and costs; (b) for a second offence, to a fine not exceeding twenty-five ($25) dollars and costs; (c) for a third or any subsequent offence to a fine not exceeding one hundred ($100) dollars and costs.

Provided that no person shall be guilty of an offence against this By-law who serves after closing hour any customer who was in the shop prior to such hour.

DONE AND PASSED in the open Council this 11th day of April, 1914.

Mayor, Secretary-Treasurer.

NOTICE is hereby given that objections to the petition presented to the Council praying for the passing of such By-law on the ground that such petition is insufficiently signed or otherwise affecting the validity or sufficiency thereof, must be filed with the Secretary-Treasurer of the City on or before the 18th day of May, 1914, and that if no such objections are filed before the said date the Council will forthwith proceed to pass the said closing By-law.

A. T. STEPHENSON, Secretary-Treasurer.

NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council of the City of Red Deer proposes issuing a local improvement By-law, without a vote of the ratepayers, for carrying out the following works as local improvements in the City of Red Deer, and assessing the cost thereof against the persons registered or assessed as owners of the land abutting on the street or place whereon or wherein the improvements are to be made, or of the lands to be benefited by the local improvement, under within two weeks after the last publication of the proposed By-law. If this notice a petition is presented to the Council against the proposed work, signed by a majority of the owners of the lands to be affected, representing at least one half in value thereof, exclusive of improvements thereon.

This notice will appear in the issues of "The News" published on the 15th and 22nd of April, 1914.

DOCTOR AND NURSE

Former's Love Stood the Supreme Test at Operating Table in Hospital.

By HAROLD CARTER.

Nurse Glyn tapped quickly at the door of Doctor Bentley's room in the Central hospital, and then entered without further ceremony. The doctor was seated at his table, writing; he had not heard her knock. As she approached he turned round in his chair, got up, and took her in his arms and kissed her.

"I'm wanted," he asked.

"Yes, dear. An emergency case. A child has been knocked down by an automobile. His leg is broken and there are internal injuries."

"Are they getting ready?" asked the doctor, slipping into his linen overalls.

"He's being anesthetized now," Nurse Glyn answered, and kissed him again. "O my dear, how glad I shall be when Easter comes. Then we shall be together always—no more of these hasty meetings."

She went out noiselessly, and Doctor Bentley, having completed his preparations, followed her into the operating room. The little patient lay upon the glass table, ready for his scalpel. At the head of the table, pouring out, from time to time, a few drops of ether upon the mask which covered the lower part of the face.

But although she watched the boy as attentively she also watched the doctor; and she watched him with some sort of intense faculty of sight, so that, without failing in her duty, she was as conscious of him as of the child.

For this was to be the supreme measure by which she might understand his love for her. Whether strong and abiding, or a pitiful thing born of loneliness on the one side and propriety upon the other, she was not sure of him; she could not be sure until he met the mother of the child on his way out.

He did not know that this was his own child upon which he was operating so deftly. His skillful fingers plucked up the shattered elements of muscle and tendon, then for the assistant's sutures. His scalpel cut into the bruised tissues, but mercifully, and only to lay bare the shattered bones within. None at the Central hospital bore such a reputation for deft and careful surgery as Doctor Bentley.

"Have No Fear of That."

They had been engaged three months. She knew what was a common report, that he had been married before, unhappily; that his wife had gone west and obtained a divorce upon the technical ground of desertion; that she had returned, to marry Anthony Blair, the millionaire, who could afford to give her these luxuries which her butterfly soul desired, and which the doctor, immersed in his work, had never dreamed of being necessary to her, nor been able to gratify.

But that had been a child she did not know till that evening when Mrs. Blair appeared with white face at the hospital gates and pleaded for the crippled baby that had been knocked down. She carried it in her arms, and Nurse Glyn would never forget the look of terror upon her face. That it was the doctor's child she knew, for it must have been four years old, and it was only three years since the couple had separated.

Well, when he knew, would his heart turn with yearning toward his child and cast her out utterly, even though he knew that the past could be undone?

The operation was almost ended. The last instrument was replaced in the tray of bubbling water; Doctor Bentley was sponging the sown tissues with the mercerized gauze, and off his gloves. He divested himself of his linen garments and stood up, dressed as he usually was, in his white coat, and Nurse Glyn removed the mask.

The little patient moaned and stirred.

"He'll do nicely now," she heard the doctor say to an auditor, but to the ward nurse, and—good-night!

She wheeled the table into the adjoining room, transferred the child to the stretcher, and began pushing it through into the passage. The woman was waiting there—Mrs. Anthony Blair. Nurse Glyn hesitated involuntarily. She heard the doctor at her heels; in another minute he would know.

The night nurse took the stretcher from her. She turned away and lingered a moment near. Then she saw the doctor start and heard the woman's agonized cry.

"Oh, doctor, is he dead? He is not dead? He will live then? You must save him!" The woman's frantic clamor of recognition and then silence. The two were standing alone. For the new of the meeting had spread among the other members of the hospital staff, and they tactfully disappeared.

"Oh, it's you," the nurse heard Mrs. Blair exclaim, in an embarrassed voice.

"Yes, Alice," she heard the doctor answer gravely. "I am happy to tell you that he will recover and that the limb will not be shortened. I am so sorry for you," he added impulsively. "I must have been a terrible blow."

"Her son! Was he, then, disclaiming the paternity of the boy, or did he not know?"

"How old is he? He is a promising little fellow."

"Yes, dear," answered the woman. She was still trembling, still overcome by the shock of the meeting. Her bitterly mind was badly bruised, even as the child's little body had been.

"Four!" exclaimed Doctor Bentley to astonishment. Nurse Glyn, standing near, saw his face turn pale. He made an impulsive step toward her.

"Alone! Whose child is he? Who is his father?" he demanded fiercely.

"I don't know," sobbed Mrs. Blair. "Why do you ask me? Why are you looking at me like that? Haven't you told me enough that you should terrify me?" she sobbed. "I don't know who is his father, nor its mother."

"Is—mother?" gasped the doctor. "Isn't he your child then?"

"Certainly not!" she exclaimed, drawing herself up indignantly. "Do you suppose my child would go to a common hospital if he were injured? Didn't they tell you that John ran the automobile over a street boy? Yes, she continued in a petulant voice, and a crowd gathered and threatened to break in if I hadn't enough presence of mind to jump out and carry him into the hospital they would have thrown stones at me. And I don't dare to go out if he should be going to die, or I shall be arrested and thrown into a common cell."

"Have no fear of that, Mrs. Blair," answered the doctor gravely. "I shall have you sent home in my own automobile. And the child will be well in a few weeks."

"Mr. Blair is able to pay for any damages," replied the woman coldly. She had not understood.

The doctor bowed and turned away. He walked straight past Nurse Glyn; she followed him; he turned and saw her.

"You know, then?" he asked, seeing the look on her face.

"Yes, dear," she whispered. "And I have been so afraid!"

He pressed her to his heart. "You thought it was my child? If it had been—"

"It had been," she whispered anxiously.

"Dearest," answered the doctor gravely. "I might have loved then, but you would still have been first in my heart—as now, as always."

COULDN'T KEEP ANY GOODS

Country Storekeeper Pretty Well Discouraged at the Pervercity of His Customers.

"Have you crackers of any kind?" asked one of an automobile party as he entered a little store by the roadside a little more than half a mile from the nearest town.

"No, I'm just out of 'crackers," was the reply. "I had some last week, but a man came along here the other day and bought all I had—damn it all! Seems like as soon as I lay in a stock of anything some one comes along and buys it all of me, an' I got to bother round gittin' more."

"Have you any sardines?"

"Not a one. I got a dozen boxes a couple of months ago, but some fellows on a fishin' tussle came along the other day an' bought the last two boxes—please take 'em! Seems as though I can't keep nothin' on hand for my customers!"

"Well, have you any oranges or fruit of any other kind?"

"No, I ain't. I got half a box of oranges two or three weeks ago an' a auto load of people came along and grabbed up the last of 'em the other day. I told 'em that if they tuk 'em all I'd lend him to get some more. I'd a good mind not to let 'em have 'em."

"My wife wants a spoon of white thread. Have you any?"

"Sold the last spoon I had Sat'day, dang it all! I tell you, this keepin' store is mighty discouragin' business. Soon as you lay in a lot of stuff some one comes in an' buys it all of you an' you got to bustle round an' get more. A man come for this mornin' an' bought the last bit of cheese I had, an' here I was 'trottin' on havin' it last a couple o' weeks yet. It discourages me so sellin' things most as soon as you get 'em on the shelves that I've a good mind to sell out an' go back to farmin' where you ain't pestered the way you are here when you keep store. I'm put discouraged!"—Puck.

Recent Indian Horrors.

The lecture was criticized Uncle Sam's method of handling the affairs of certain tribes.

"Pardon me for interrupting you," spoke up an auditor, but do you maintain that we are our Indian brothers' Chero-keepers?"

"I have no hesitation, sir," answered the lecturer, frowning at him. "In pronouncing that the Chocowaldest pun I ever heard."

An Awkward Motto

A good story relating to the Erie family motto is recalled by the recent death of Lord Erskine, who was a great-grandson of the famous first Lord Erskine, Lord Chancellor of Great Britain. For centuries the family motto had been "Judge not."

When the first Lord Erskine became Lord Chancellor, chief of all the judges of the Empire and the Sovereign's legal adviser, the motto was obviously an awkward dictum to appear on the panels of his carriage and elsewhere.

His Lordship proved himself to be a man of the times and invented a new motto for himself—"Trial by jury!"

which has ever since been placed beneath the family arms.

NORDEGG MINERS' STRIKE QUICKLY SETTLED

(Crowded out last week.)

During the latter part of March a new scale of wages, intended to be effective on April 1st, was submitted to the miners employed at the Brazeau Collieries mines at Nordegg. The new scale did not meet with the approval of the miners, and a two-days' stoppage of work occurred while negotiations were proceeding between operators and the men. As the miners are not yet organized at Nordegg, the Company declined to make any agreement until the month of June, and agreed to operate till then on the rates in force previous to April 1st. The men accordingly resumed work on Friday afternoon.

An organizer of the U.M.W. of A. is expected in Nordegg at an early date for the purpose of forming a local in this camp. This is a step in the right direction, as a large amount of capital is invested in this Brazeau enterprise and it is necessary that the Company avoid as far as possible any delays during the development stage.

The formation of a local of the U.M.W. of A. here will enable negotiations to be carried on and effective agreements made with the knowledge of the provincial government, and the miners as a responsible corporate body, and not merely, as in the present instance, with transient individuals.

The short duration of the late strike is very creditable to the Pit Committee, who handled the case for the miners, and to Mr. Shanks, superintendent of the mines, who represented the Company.

Correspondence

Red Deer, Alta., April 13, 1914. To the Editor, Red Deer News.

Dear Sir,—With your consent, I would like to pass a few comments upon an article which appeared in the Red Deer Advocate of April 3rd, headed "Public Works for Red Deer District." We are told that Mr. R. B. Welliver interviewed the Minister of Public Works and other members of the provincial government, and as a result of his representations we are told that this constituency is to receive five thousand dollars for the whole road district and three thousand dollars towards a proposed bridge in the outskirts of the city.

Now I would ask your readers who are allowed to think for themselves what they think of a government that requires the instigation of a devoted candidate before making up their minds what they should give towards any constituency which had not elected a candidate to support them. Can they come to the conclusion that this is a government that should receive the people's support? I would next come to criticize Mr. Welliver's good judgment. Do you think that there is any just comparison to be drawn of five thousand dollars for the roads of the whole constituency and three thousand dollars for the bridge mentioned? Let them figure out for themselves what their proportion of the five thousand dollars would be in comparison with the three thousand dollars with people to receive the benefits.

The Advocate also tells us that the C.P.R. is not to be approached in regard to the building of the proposed bridge, and I have no doubt but the C.P.R. will jump at the chance of getting liberty to complete this much needed improvement, and the only reason I can see if they refuse to do it will be that we did not let them know that we needed it before this time and may hurt their dignity; but in the event of their building it, I hope Mr. Welliver has made the provision that we get the three thousand dollars to spend at his discretion. Thanking you in anticipation,

I remain, yours,
A LOVER OF GOOD ROADS.

Death of Mrs. Belva Trump

The citizens of Red Deer will regret very much to hear of the death of Mrs. Belva Trump, wife of E. W. Trump, at Parkvale, on Sunday night, at 10.15. The deceased lady, who was fifty-three years of age, came to Red Deer with her husband and youngest son two years ago, and had never been in the best of health, as she had suffered from heart trouble more or less, and it had been definitely decided that she should return to the east next month.

She also suffered much lately from grief, and had found it necessary to have her daughter, Mrs. Slaughter, from St. Thomas, Ont., with her for the past three weeks. The deceased was born in Fort Gatoit in Iowa, 1861. She was a prominent member of the Daughters of England Society for the past fifteen years; her husband is also a Past President of the Sons of England.

She leaves behind her four sons and four daughters, Mrs. Slaughter, Mrs. Beal and Mrs. Farrow, of St. Thomas, Ontario, Mrs. Chas. Slaughter, of Walkerville, Ont., W. E. Everett and Nelson Trump, of Red Deer, and David Trump of Calgary.

The funeral service was held at St. George's church on Tuesday afternoon, a large number of friends and sympathizers being present, including the executive officers of the Sons of England local lodges.

The body was shipped to St. Thomas last night, accompanied by Mrs. Slaughter and E. W. Trump, Senior, who will again make his home in the east, where all his children reside.

Arabian Nights

A very successful entertainment was performed before a small but enthusiastic audience on Thursday last in St. Luke's Parish Hall. The play, "The Arabian Nights" entertainment, was produced by the members of the Ancient Young People's Association, and was put on under the auspices of that Society. The play centres on the adventures of Arthur Hummingbird, played by E. J. Warlow, who receives a visit from Rosa Columbian, "The Gutter Perch Girl," whose part was taken by Miss Gillibrand.

Each lady in the cast, as well as the audience, is asked to contribute to the fund for the relief of the sufferers from the great sealing disaster in Newfoundland. Also to those who have not already contributed, in anticipation of the distressing news from the sufferers from this terrible marine disaster may send their contributions to the office of this paper, or to any of the undersigned.

(Signed) E. P. Oldford, R. J. Ke, L. F. Hopkins, A. D. Oldford, S. P. Quinton, W. Taylor, J. Greening, G. D. Oldford, L. A. Oldford, J. E. C. Oldford.

MARRIAGE.

At the Manse, Red Deer, on Saturday, April 18th, by the Rev. W. G. Brown, Miss Lillian Florence Blair, of Piteau, Alberta, to Mr. Charles Davidson Smith, of the same place.

Peculiar Accident

J. W. Dobson, of Innisfail, was brought to the hospital last week suffering with a dislocation and fracture of his shoulder, and was operated on by Dr. L. Allan, and he will probably have the use of his arm again in time. On April 13th he was proceeding to his home at the west of Events, and when approaching the bridge over the Medicine River the auto dropped into a deep rut, throwing off one of the front lamps, which jammed between the wheel and the axle in such a manner as to turn the wheels sideways and make the steering gear useless. The machine plunged onto the bridge, and before the brakes could be applied crashed through the heavy railing and dropped twelve feet to the edge of the river, turning completely over. Mr. Dobson was extricated from under the car, which was badly wrecked, and had a very narrow escape. A few feet more and he would have dropped into the water, where he would have been drowned without a doubt.

A very nice display of patterns for men's suits is being shown this week in Fulton's window, Gaetz Ave.

S.O.E. Anniversary

The anniversary of the formation of Lodge Red Deer of the Sons of England Society was held in the lodge rooms at the parish hall on Wednesday, April 15th. A fair number of the members were present.

There was a very interesting social with music, songs, cards, etc., President R. E. Fiske occupying the chair.

Awful Sealing Disaster

Following the awful loss of life to the crew of the Newfoundland sealing steamer, when about twenty of her crew lost their lives or were maimed or frozen, comes the news that the steamer Southern Cross, a splendid vessel, carrying 170 men, has been given up for lost, and as she was loaded with seal skins, there is not a shadow of doubt among old sailors but that a great deal of money has been lost.

Later, the steamer Kite, the smallest vessel in the fleet, carrying 65 men, is missing, and no doubt she has met the fate of the Southern Cross.

SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Newfoundlanders throughout the west are profoundly impressed by these disasters, and Captain John B. Oldford, of Penhold, himself one of his life a sealing captain, and knowing the officers at least of the vessels wrecked, and E. P. Oldford, another seal collector, took up a subscription last week for the suffering families in the city, and the donations were liberal.

There were many, however, who were not asked to help, but any one who desires to give towards a fund to help the distressed widows, may do so by leaving the money at the News Office, and such donations will be thankfully acknowledged.
